

About the Center for Railroad Photography & Art

Founded in 1997, the Center for Railroad Photography & Art preserves and presents the visual imagery of the railroads, while bringing together a community who shares this passion. The support of more than 1,300 members throughout North America and beyond enables all our programs to thrive.

From our archive in Madison, Wisconsin, we care for a growing collection of more than 600,000 photographic images and art objects, making them digitally accessible for research, scholarship, and general interest.

This collection is central to all of our activities, which include publishing books and our quarterly journal, Railroad Heritage, traveling exhibitions hosted with partner venues, an annual in-person conference, as well as regularly-scheduled online programming.

We endeavor to share railroading's visual stories and historic impacts while also promoting the many talented artists and photographers at work today capturing the contemporary railroad environment.

Learn more at our website:
www.railphoto-art.org.

All members receive:

- Four quarterly issues of our ad-free quarterly journal, Railroad Heritage[®]
- Discounted admission to in-person conferences and events
